OUR LITTLE TOWN

*OUR LITTLE town, that has not yet attained
The height and breadth of cities, oh, stay small!
What profit is the vastness they have gained,
Their strength of stone and steel: when, growing tall
They lose the singing company of leaves;
And growing wide, they have no room for grass;
No rose-vines reaching for contented eaves,
No space to watch the seasons as they pass.*

*NO LURE have cities to entice a thrush,
Nor yards for children, carpeted and sweet;
With all their pride and gaiety and rush,
They bear the burden of a million feet.
You have your gardens, friendliness, and trees –
Our little town, be satisfied with these.*

The Changing Face of Colebrook

As the town passes the milestone of its second century, it seems fitting to recall in this year's Town Report, some of the major changes which have occurred through the years.

The most startling changes, of course, resulted from the three big fires along Main Street, and to a lesser degree, from the disastrous flood of 1929.

Unfortunately, early Town records were lost in the fire of 1870, but surviving pictures pretty much tell the story.

In the picture on the preceding page, Colebrook appears as it looked just before the fire of 1870 which leveled Main Street from Pleasant Street to Parsons Street — a fire to be repeated in 1901.

The great fire of 1901 broke out in Tom Hill's store (Judge Cobb's office today) and swept everything from J. W. Drew's store on the corner of Pleasant St. (Hicks' Hardware) up through and including the Dudley Block (Farmers and Traders) and east on Parson's Street taking with it the Edward's block (Bunnell's Barber Shop and Miss Martha's) as far as the Stickney property.

Harry Aills, then a boy of 16, recalls helping to operate the "Mohawk", the town's sole piece of fire fighting equipment which had been run into the Mohawk River behind Danny Hebert's, but to no avail.

On July 29th, 1903, the Forrestral fire leveled the two buildings just south of the Remick block, and also burned the Grammar School. Jesse Forrestral, paternal grandfather of Olla Forrestral (pictured) perished in the blaze.

The last great fire broke out on Sunday, April 10th, 1904, and burned "Paddy Acre" — the entire block which extended from Web Drew's at the corner of Parson's Street (Scott's today) up to the Grammar School property including the Remick Block.

TOWN FATHERS

Jason Henry Dudley (born without kneecaps), an 1862 graduate of Dartmouth College and Headmaster of Colebrook Academy for three years, filled many positions of trust and responsibility in Colebrook. For several years he was superintendent of C. A. and a Trustee for more than a quarter of a century. He also served as Town Clerk, County Solicitor, Town Representative, and finally, Senator from Coos County, before authoring the History of Colebrook in the Coos County History.

Daniel Cummings was born in Colebrook in 1840. A former store partner of H. C. Young, Mr. Cummings was a Colebrook representative to the Legislature and was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1889. He was Colebrook's Town Clerk for 33 years — the longest record. (Charles O. Stevens served 27 years.)

Ed Lull probably happened along and was photographed with inseparable fishing pals, Dudley and Cummings, in front of Mrs. Stickney's home as they were walking home. Mr. Lull was a mail carrier and one time selectman of Colebrook.

MOHAWK RIVER VALLEY HOMES RAVAGED

(All Flood Material Taken From
"Colebrook's Disastrous Flood"
By Harry C. Hikel, long time
Publisher of the News and Sentinel)

Pressed by the heavy rains the day before, and swollen from melting snow, the angry waters of Lakes Abenaki and Coashault burst through the concrete shell dam at the Balsams at 6:30 on Friday evening, May 3, 1929.

In the hour and a half it took to reach Colebrook, a solid wall of water that approached 20 feet at its crest, swept through Kidderville carrying away miles and miles of hard-paved roads — some to a width of 500 feet and a depth of 100 feet — and every intervening bridge as well until it roared into Colebrook just as the Town clock struck 8:00 p.m.

The deafening roar of thousands of tons of debris coupled with the brilliant lightening of the power lines going, created a wild and memorable scene before the entire area was plunged into total darkness.

Damage was estimated at $1 million dollars, no traffic moved until late afternoon the next day. Due to sufficient warning, no lives were lost. The town appropriated $125,000.00 to restore essential facilities, and Governor Tobey issued an immediate state-wide appeal for relief and rehabilitation funds.

Since the previous year's crop prices barely paid for the seed, and farmers were compelled to sell their crops for considerably less than it cost to raise them, the disaster couldn't have hit Colebrook at a worse time.

“AND THE FLOODS CAME”

By: Harry C. Hikel

Resourceful and sturdy Colebrook seldom faces emergencies that require assistance from without her borders. We do not know just yet what are the dimensions of the recent disaster. We only know that scores of residents have been rendered homeless and hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of property have been destroyed. The one comforting fact now visible is that human life has been spared in this great catastrophe.

We waited with tense anxiety to hear from the little hamlet of Kidderville, yet we feared to obtain the truth from that isolated group of inhabitants. We feared something like the Winooski Valley deluge of a year and a half ago. We feared that the rushing waters not only carried away the structures there, but that residents had been whirled away to death.

Fortunately, our fears were baseless. Kidderville although suffering heavy losses, in reality escaped with less damage than did the less fortunate Colebrook. There is suffering in many places, but, life being spared, is a thing to hail with relief.

Our flood was bad enough, Heaven knows. But how much worse must have been the Mississippi Valley flood! By how many shall we multiply the havoc wrought in our midst to reach the total of the devastation wrought along the mighty Mississippi?

Early Friday evening families in the wake of the angry torrents were peacefully gathered around the supper tables. Saturday morning at daybreak, a few short hours later, these same folks were busy removing the debris and cleaning their homes.

Did they hesitate to tackle the giant task ahead? No! Demonstrating the true stock and spirit, they not only buckled down to the job, but offered assistance to their less fortunate neighbors. Everyone was doing his bit, and it wasn't long before a conspicuous change had taken place where once the wreckage stood.

Spurred onward by the National Colors, which were flying in the breeze above the mass of ruins on the Academy lawn, these sturdy and wholesome hearted New Englanders unhesitatingly faced a task which seemed almost impossible.

FLOOD DAMAGE

Saturday morning, the Mohawk Valley looked as if a giant harrow had been dragged from the Balsams to Colebrook. Trees were plucked as though they were daisies, buildings were turned into matchwood, and the entire rubble of the flood has been dumped into town. Not a spear of grass showed anywhere along the path of the angry waters. Fifty-eight houses were damaged, of which 15 were completely demolished, 25 moved off their foundations, and forty-seven families lost their household goods. Several hundred feet of the Maine Central Railroad were washed out.

COMPARISON OF TAX LISTS.

A comparison of the tax lists of 1816 with those of 1897 will give a bird's eye view of the changes of four score years from a material or fiscal stand point. Space forbids a complete enumeration of the individual lists of 1816, as presented in the Coos County History. The following families were represented by two or more taxpayers: Parsons, Titus, Covell, Aldrich and Bissell. In 1816 there were 68 persons paying a poll tax in Colebrook; in 1897 the number was 492. The total valuation of the property in town in 1816 was $33,206, with an average of $488 to each tax payer. The total school, state, town and county taxes were $268.41, with an average tax of about $3.00 to each tax payer. In 1897 the total cash paid out was $15,732, or an average of nearly $32 for each tax payer, a per capita increase of more than ten-fold. The property valuation in 1897 was $797,506, with an average of $1621 for each tax payer. While the population has increased more than seven fold, the property valuation has increased twenty-four-fold, and the actual wealth much more. In 1816 there were 56 houses and 14 horses, while there were 74 oxen, 116 cows and 112 young cattle. The number of horses in 1897 was 808, an increase of 57-fold in 81 years, the number of oxen in 1897 was 22, a decrease of about three and one-half-fold in the same period. These facts show conclusively that the people then relied on their own powers of locomotion rather than on horses, and also that the farmers performed their farm work largely with oxen. It was common to bundle the whole family on the ox sled, which was drawn to meeting or spelling school by a pair of smart steers. Probably the year 1897 witnessed the smallest number of neat cattle ever kept in Colebrook for many years, due to the long prevailing low prices in beef, and the temptation to sell milk fed veal. There were only 85 head reported, while 81 years earlier there were 112. The increase of the number of cows from 116 to 799 is in nearly the same proportion as the increase of population, although the average number of cows kept by each actual farmer has probably more than trebled. Judging from the enormous sales of "liquid refreshments" by the early landlords and merchants, very little milk was needed for family use, except perhaps for milk punch. The average butter product per cow has more than doubled, and the prices in 1897, the lowest in many years were still a third better than at the earlier period. The number of sheep in 1816 was not given, but in 1897 the number was 1915, and the average wool clip was doubtless fully twice as large per sheep as in 1816. The summers of 1816 and 1817 were long and sadly remembered by the early settlers as the cold years. In 1816 there were frosts all through the year; all crops failed badly, and many sheep that had been sheared died from the severe cold, but it required several years to recover from the losses of the two cold years.

A FEW COMPARISONS.

Some one has said "comparisons are odious," and they seem to be when they show our own deficiencies, but they are interesting and instructive. We shall present a few entries taken from the day book of Smith & Pratt, way back during the war of 1812; also entries on the day book of Hazen Bedel in 1864-5, and make a comparison with present prices. There is a liquid flow and rhythm to the earlier entries "keeping time, time, time, with a sort of runic rhyme," that is very suggestive of the times. They run along in about the following strain: Rum, rum, rum, tea, tobacco and rum, tea, rum, salt and molasses, grog, fish, nails, gin and sugar, shot. I will not give the names of the purchasers, for I do not wish to shock the ancestral pride of citizens.

From Smith & Pratt's day book, 1812-13:

To 4 lbs of nails	$ .72	1 lb tea,	2.50
3 pints of rum,	1.25	1 mug cider,	.13
1 lb of shot,	.25	5 yds calico	3.90
1 pint of rum,	.37	3½ gal whiskey,	4.38
740 feet of boards,	3.70	bitters,	.20
4 lbs of nails,	.80	1 felt hat	2.17
2 quarts of salt,	.21	1 yd cambric,	.83
2½ yds shirting	4.50	oxen 1 day,	.50
1 bushel wheat,	1.25	1 oz indigo,	.27
1½ lb tea.	3.00	2 nutmegs,	.25
4 eggs,	.08	½ yd cotton,	.50
1 gill whiskey,	.08	2 doz buttons,	.83
sawing 50 feet of pine	1.01	1¼ calico	1.02

In one page taken at random there were ten entries for rum, and six other entries. This was a fair sample of dozens of pages. In 1814-16 whiskey became a much more popular beverage than rum. These were the good old times when a stalwart hired man could exchange a week of hard toil from sun to sun, for a pound of tea, and two weeks hard work would not buy a calico dress pattern for his best girl; when a farmer could exchange two pounds of butter for a pound of nails, but usually decided to take it in rum.

We will now take a long step, observe our bearings at the half century mile post, and look at the war and greenback prices of '64-'65.

The most wonderful change is in the extension of the list of articles purchased, and the entire disappearance of rum entries. Half a dozen staples would complete the list of 1812, while in 1864-65 the list shows multiplied wants and luxurious tastes.

Prices current from Hazen Bedel's day book:

3 pounds of wool.	$3.00	1 pound Oolong tea,	1.65
1 yard calico.	.50	Sugar,	18 to 20 cts.
1 pair thick boots.	$6.00	1 pound of Japan tea,	$1.75
1 gallon kerosene.	1.25	Dressed pork,	16 to 18 cts.

J. W. Drew furnishes the following 1898 quotations:

Flour,	$6.00	Coffee,	20 to 40 cts.
Cotton cloth,	6cts. per yd.	Tea,	25 to 60 cts.
Prints,	4 to 5 cts.	Raisins	8 to 15c
W. I. Molasses,	45 to 50 cts.	Starch,	10c
Salt,	50c per bushel	Butter,	18 to 25c

The Selectmen wish to thank Earl A. Bunnell, Perley Davis, and Mrs. Grace Cummings for special material included in the Town Report. A special "Thank You" to Harry Aills for both pictures and Historical information.

THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC

Some of the Colebrook members of the Carlos Fletcher Post muster before their meeting hall (the third floor of what is now Howard's Restaurant) probably on Memorial Day about 1919.

COLEBROOK'S SONS HAVE FOUGHT IN EVERY WAR

At the time of the Civil War, when Colebrook and Columbia comprised 1/6th of the Coos County population, 25% of the Coos County Volunteers were from these two towns.

The Carlos Fletcher Post No. 57 of the G.A.R. was organized in Colebrook in 1880 with 22 charter members under Capt. Elisha P. Hicks, the first commander. Alfred Alls was the last surviving member from Colebrook, and when he died January 7, 1927, the G.A.R. flag was placed on his breast by Hiram Heath, the last surviving member in the North Country.

In 1889, the town voted the sum of $500.00 for the soldier's monument which now graces the center of Memorial Park opposite the Town Hall.

From an original annual appropriation of $75.00, the town has voted funds every year for cemetery care.

The decoration of Veterans' graves is now carried out by George L. O'Neil Post No. 62 of the American Legion and the annual appropriation has grown to $300.00.

North Country Community Services, Inc.

To: The Residents of Colebrook, N. H.

Dear Citizens:

The cornerstone for North Country Community Services was laid in 1966. Sealed into the foundation was a vow to combat man's oldest enemy, the malfunction of mind and spirit.

The number of persons seen at the clinic has climbed steadily from 22 in 1965/66 to 626 in our last fiscal year which closed on June 30, 1969. The people of Colebrook have responded well with public and personal funds and interest. Many are volunteering as "community caretakers", taking case histories, giving supportive therapy to returning state hospital patients, working with the alcoholic and serving on our newly formed Advisory Committee which will hopefully keep us informed of new services to be rendered.

The problem of mental illness is one of our community's biggest. Alcoholism, retardation, drug use by teenagers, speech and reading disability, marital discord; there is so much to be done. Your support of our program has been most real and important.

As the year closes, may we thank you for your support in the past and request your continued financial support of $2,415.00. Would you place this amount on your town warrant for consideration at the March 1970 town meeting.

Sincerely,

JOHN K. DONOHUE, ACSW
Executive Director

REPORT OF THE BICENTENNIAL COMMITTEE

Since the Bicentennial Commission held its first meeting in May of 1969, to formulate plans for the two-hundredth birthday of the town, our ideas have taken concrete shape and we are looking forward to a monumental celebration.

Acting for the town, we are sponsoring the sale of such Bicentennial souvenirs as coins, bottles, plates, towels, etc., which are helping to make the Bicentennial self-supporting. Although we are operating on a projected budget of twenty-eight thousand dollars, it is not the aim of this committee to make money for the town. Instead, it is one of our duties to use our revenue to provide the greatest possible number of free and low-cost attractions which, we hope, will make Colebrook's the best birthday party any town ever had.

Among our projects are dinners, both public and fraternal, dances for the young and for the over-thirty group, stage shows of the finest professional talent, both country and legitimate, a pageant, a parade, daily exhibits, special days honoring the elderly and the youth of our town, and many other spectaculars, including fireworks.

Many of these specialties have already been contacted for, and and the balance will be finalized shortly.

May we say that, so far, we have met with great success in securing the help of our fellow townspeople whenever we have asked for it. Among the many who have already given us direct aid we must give special thanks to the Corriveau Brothers who are generously providing us with an authentic log cabin as our Bicentennial headquarters, and to Ralph Jenkins for permitting us to erect the cabin on his Colby Street lot.

We are anticipating at least ten thousand visitors to our town during the Bicentennial week of August 25 through 30, and there will undoubtedly be more on peak days. This is bound to put a strain on our housing and catering facilities and we hope the townspeople, and especially organizations within the town, will start making plans to cope with this temporary influx of population.

In conclusion, we would like to add that we hope, indeed, we expect, that our fellow townsmen, one and all, will make their time and talents available so that this celebration will be the success it ought to be.

Both the Executive Committee and the sub-committees are exerting a vast amount of time and effort to do proper honor to this lovely old town of ours. We have every reason to believe that our fellow citizens will be equally eager to do their share in properly making this milestone in the continuing history of our homeland.

OLD TIMES IN COLEBROOK

The early history of Colebrook contains few features of special or dramatic interest, as the town was settled after the Revolution, and fortunately the pioneers were spared the distress and excitement of Revolutionary and Indian warfare. The only records of the town were burned, and consequently the historian possesses but scanty information regarding the coming of the first settlers. It is well known that the earliest came in and occupied their lands as squatters. While they shared the inevitable hardships and privations incident to pioneer life, this period was not as long continued, nor were the hardships as severe as in some of the earlier or more remote mountain settlements. This was due to the comparative proximity of the earlier southern settlements, the helpful facilities of river communication, and the rapid settlement of the town. The log hut period was passed by the more prosperous settlers as early as 1820, after the Smith & Pratt and other saw mills were well established. The first settlers were composed of two classes. There was a comparatively small number of adventurous and well-to-do men who came in to secure the natural rise in value of the rich farming lands, to engage in trade and manufacture lumber. This class and their families were soon provided with what was then regarded as the essential necessaries and comforts of life. They were the builders of the large square two-story houses, with big stacks of chimney, the throats of great roaring fireplaces. The other and much more numerous class, were the poor who came in with their household goods all packed on the back of one horse, whose existence for years was a fierce and continuous but hopeful struggle with hardship and poverty. Their children were early inured to toil and hardship, and were put to service with their more prosperous neighbors. They were the parents of men who wrote history with a large pen in Eastern office, and on Western prairie, and with the sword and bayonet on Southern battle-field. The first frame houses of the poorer class, were low, one story unpainted dwellings usually about 20 feet square

The lives of the inmates, though frugal and laborous, were occasionally relieved and brightened by social sports. Many an hour was devoted to the gun and fishing rod, the sports which conducted to health, recreation and profit. For the outlying forests abounded in small game while the coves and inlets of the sylvan ponds, and of the glancing mountain brooks were animate with the salmon and speckled trout. Occasionally a noble buck or antlered moose was obtained as a price for the winter supplies of the numerous family. The well-to-do, were as a rule kindly and accommodating to their poorer neighbors, though enforced legal collection of debts, even to the extent of incarceration in jail, was by no means uncommon. Common needs and hardships resulted in mutual helpfulness, and neighbors were neighbors in the old days. "Bees" were held on every possible pretext and occasion. Clearing bees enabled a beleaguered neighbor to put in a late crop of oats or barley, husking bees and apple parings were helpful and happy occasions and were wound up with kitchen junkets and all night frolics "Raisings" of the heavy old-fashioned eight-inch square frames required the presence of the whole neighborhood, and liquid refreshments were liberally provided.
